Subject: What's up?

Hi, Eric!

Hello from Miami Beach! It's really great here. The weather is great. There are good stores and there's a pool in the hotel! What do you think of my pictures? That's my cousin and me in the first picture. He's a lot of fun. We go out to the park almost every day!

I love the food here. There's a big buffet at the hotel every morning. Look at those pancakes! They are so good. I eat pancakes every day for breakfast.

The beach is across from the hotel. Actually, the beach isn't so good. It's very crowded. I usually swim in the hotel pool. See you soon! How's the weather in Chicago?

The Farm Girl and the Milk

Once there was a girl who lived on a farm. Every day she took care of the cows. She milked them, and then she made butter and cheese. One morning, her father said, “You are a good girl. You work very hard. You can have this milk. You can take it to town and sell it. Then you can keep the money and buy something nice.”

So the farm girl went to town with milk. On the way, she thought, “This is good milk. I can sell it for a good price. Then I can buy some eggs. I’ll keep the eggs and soon I’ll have chickens. Chickens grow fast. In a few months, I’ll have more eggs and more chickens. Then I can sell the chickens and buy a new dress. It will be a beautiful dress. All the young men will look at me. But I won’t talk to them. I’ll wait for a rich man or a prince. Yes, I’ll marry a prince.”

The farm girl was very happy. She walked down the road and closed her eyes. She was thinking about the prince. She didn’t look down at the road, so she didn’t see a large stone. Her foot hit the stone and down she went. Down went the milk, too, all over the road. And that was the end of the eggs and the chickens, the dress, and the prince.
